To satisfy the increasing need for student achievement in foreign languages, this Department emphasized the spoken as well as the written language by using tapes and records. Realizing the necessity for greater understanding of politics, government, and social mores, the Social Studies Department stressed knowledge of current events and problems as well as past occurrences. Asking why, discovering why were paramount in the science program as students studied and experimented.

Cafeteria and Maintenance

CAFETERIA STAFF: Zenora Whitley, Corene Brewington, Gertrude Smith, Ethel Wiggins, Elizabeth Wiggins.

Though having to operate two shifts in order to serve the student body, the Lunchroom Staff always managed to provide good lunches and to keep attractive floral arrangements and bulletin boards in the cafeteria. To keep our buildings and grounds clean and attractive, the Maintenance Staff walked many miles, but always willingly went that second mile to unlock a door when a key had been lost or to move a desk to another room.

Mr. Dail and distinguished guests

The Vaiden Whitley High School is a product of a determined people, willing to blaze a new trail to meet the challenges of modern education. It bears the name of one whose faith in young people, interest in education, and desire for proper facilities for development of the whole individual prompted him to give twenty-three years of active service for the cause of education.

Dr. W. Amos Abrams

"It is no brick and mortar but an oasis for those who but for it would wander in dry desert sands. Under its roof and nestled close to its bosom are those who hold in their hands all of our tomorrows and determine all of our destinies."

The Shield

After many hours of diligent, tireless labor by the Yearbook Staff, copy sheets, layout sheets, pictures, and ad pages gradually blended to form the 1967 edition of The Shield. Through these media the staff sought to capture the real spirit of Vaiden Whitley as they shot unexpected candid and covered sports activities, major events, and daily actions and tasks of the students. They have endeavored to preserve the present as a meaningful memory for the future.

Student Council

Typing the student directory

To encourage citizenship and scholarship and to promote school spirit, the Vaiden Whitley Student Council recognized a "Citizen of the Month," developed a school honor code, compiled a student directory, presented an assembly program, sponsored a school-spirit week, and made bulletin boards. Council delegates were active in the Mars Hill Summer Workshop. Equally active in the state, district, and county meetings, they succeeded in having their local president, Bettie Raybon, elected to the county presidency. Programs which stressed different facets of leadership were presented to Council members and visiting school officials. Money for these varied projects was provided by operating the school store and by selling doughnuts and coffee during the football games.

Beta Club

Hours of planning, handshaking, smiles, vote-for-me's, speeches, luncheons, talent contest, enthusiastic discussions—all characterized the East Central District Beta Convention, hosted by the Whitley Club December 10, 1966. Its major project of the year, the well-planned meeting was an overwhelming success, ending with three Whitley Betas elected to district offices: Jeff Heath, President; Chris Underhill, Vice-President; and Bill Perkinson, Treasurer. Chris also placed second in the talent division. To fulfill being a leadership-service organization, the club sponsored a Christmas Card Sale, whose proceeds repaired the flag pole, made donation to Band Uniform Fund, purchased mimeoscope for school, and defrayed State Convention expenses. Approximately twenty members attended this convention in the spring. Other services to the school included helping county nurse, ushering at school functions, raising flag daily, and providing marshals for graduation. To encourage scholarship, they posted honor roll scrolls each grading period.

Most of the activities of this organization were devised to promote school spirit, its major objective. Members sat in a group at all athletic events and sponsored bonfires and pep rallies. Good sportsmanship was one of the key percepts of the club's constitution, which was written this year. Programs stimulated a greater interest in and promoted a greater knowledge of divers sports, such as wrestling and weight-lifting.

Learning to be good hostesses by preparing for the Faculty Tea

Collecting food for needy families, serving and decorating for dinners and banquets for school and community organizations, and fashioning unique Christmas decorations were but a few of the club's many activities during the year. By engaging in such projects, the members established important patterns for future home life.

As the chapter grows, so the members have grown in knowledge, leadership, and participation. This year they totaled one hundred twenty-five, sixty of whom were Greenhands, and reached new heights of success. The election and installation of officers began the year. The Federation Leadership School was the club's next concern. Chapter President, Jeff Heath, was elected Federation Vice-President. In line with its planned Program of Work, the chapter gave programs on safety, leadership, and education. Fund raising was its next major project. The peanut sale provided funds for the Father-Son Banquet, highlight of the year. At the banquet, deserving members were presented with awards. Active interest in National FFA Week resulted in programs, news stories, and advertisements. Participation in contests on the group and individual level in leadership, tool identification, and judging among other members in the Federation provided enjoyment and keen competition. Though the year ended, the activities continued since many members will attend R.J. Peeler FFA Camp at White Lake and the State FFA Convention in June.

Science Club

In their efforts to show the practical application of science in everyday activities, the Science Club members initiated two projects for the year. The first enterprise was that of planning, organizing, and setting up a darkroom, undertaken by those members with a serious interest in learning the art of photography. The second venture, the climax of the year's program, was the landscaping of the area adjoining the main entrance to the campus.

Encouraging members to do original thinking in connection with their projects rather than to follow the lines of purely deductive reasoning has been the goal of the Junior and Senior Math Clubs. Probability, statistics, and the laws of chance have been tested through mathematical games. By using the hexstat, the club members readily proved there is a normal curve of distribution. By means of prepared talks, question and answer periods, they learned about the works of great mathematicians. Members have discovered that there is more to mathematics than dry formulas and firmly established rules, and that math can be interesting as well as didactic.

In seeking to aid students desiring to become teachers, the Vaiden Whitley Chapter of this nationwide organization sponsored a tutoring service for students needing help in their studies. Through this project, through well-planned programs and services rendered, and through active individual participation, the members gained insight into the teaching profession and learned the characteristics essential for a good teacher.

Future Business Leaders of America

Developing competent, aggressive business leadership and creating a greater interest in choosing business occupations have been the main purposes of the Future Business Leaders of America. Through monthly programs members were given an opportunity to hear first-hand the experiences of successful business personnel. Taking National Business Entrance tests revealed that several members possessed aptitudes for the type of work required in business professions. At Christmas the club joined with the VICA club in assisting a needy family. Thus club members gained a better understanding of the business world and experienced the joy of serving others.

Audio-Visual Club

Providing machines and operators when needed in the classroom or for various school activities was the major function of the Audio-Visual Club. Each member endeavored to master the technique of operating every piece of equipment in the Audio-Visual Center. In order to familiarize the members with the operations of the machines, demonstrations were conducted at club meetings.

Collecting supplies for families at Christmas was the most satisfying activity of the Vaiden Whitley Chapter of the Vocational Industrial Club of America. Striving to master the skills involved in becoming a good public speaker was the major ambition of this society. Members received their first taste of speaking before an audience by delivering speeches on self-chosen topics. An opinion session gave the members an opportunity to express their thoughts on the questions of going steady and of parental control. Debates during the year covered a wide range—from "Resolved: That High School Students Should Go Steady"—to "Resolved: That Nuclear Weapons Should Be Abolished."

Band

The three bands and the majorettes served as representatives of the school in many activities in the community and the state. The Marching Warriors performed during halftime at the football games and in parades and spring festivals. At Christmas and in May, the Concert Band presented its major performances; but the highlight of the year was participation in the Regional Band Contest in Greensboro where the band, playing in Group Three, last year received a rating of good. The third company, the Stage Band, a group of 12 musicians who play popular music, performed for school and local functions and last year won first place in the competition at Millbrook. The majorettes, whether twirling fire batons or marching in front of the band, delighted all spectators.

The Vocal Ensemble, organized to fill the requests to supply entertainment at various functions, performed a capella for several clubs in the community and for the District Beta Convention.

Track and Golf

Coach Price inspecting a #3 wood

With a determined swing, the 1967 Golf Team, composed of several experienced golfers, represented Vaiden Whitley in a most creditable manner. Under the successful coaching of Mr. Dennis, the 1966 Track Team scored often in the areas of running and field events.

Cheerleaders

Sink it, boys, sink it!!

You've got to F-I-G-H-T

Determined to spirit their team on to victory, the cheerleaders began designing and practicing cheers in the summer. In the fall, copies of the cheers were prepared and distributed to the student body. The girls expressed appreciation to the team by baking cookies and serving the football team after the game. Many happy Saturdays were spent decorating the float for the Homecoming queen and princess. Presenting flowers to the visiting cheerleaders at the Homecoming game was a joy. Conducting pep rallies and cheering vivaciously were also a part of a job well done.

How a stubborn Army man unknowingly helped start Pine State Creamery Company

BY JAMES D. KILGORE
President, Pine State Creamery Co.

Back during the frantic days of World War I, military bases were popping up throughout the country. In Raleigh, plans were being made for the establishment of Camp Polk on the western outskirts of the city.

When it was ready, the Army began preparing to send men to train for the fighting in the trenches of France and Germany.

Rather suddenly, however, the movement of men and equipment was halted. The commanding officer of the new base, it seems, had learned that Raleigh offered no source of pasteurized milk.

No milk, no base, he said rather firmly. Despite the critical need for training bases, the Army agreed with the commanding officer.

After considerable negotiation, a small group of dairy farmers joined with N. C. State College to set up a small creamery on the college campus. Throughout the war, the facility provided badly-needed pasteurized milk to the military men.

When the war ended, the same group of men decided to continue the enterprise as a private business. Under the direction of Mr. Alvin Reid, Pine State Creamery Company was established at 116 South Salisbury Street in Raleigh.

In 1932, Dr. B. W. Kilgore became owner of the company and expanded its services into many other areas of the State.

Each year has brought further expansion and more products and services from the company.

As we plan for further growth and expansion, one can't help but wonder what would have happened if it had not been for the stubbornness of that Army officer more than four decades ago.
